THE GAZETTE.

MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 20.

Modern "Progress."-In one of the Broadway sample rooms, while two young "gentlemen of the period," well up in Fashion's habiliments, were sipping their iced wine, an chierly man of the "old school" popped in.

"Good morning-give us your paw-glad to see you-just in time-come, join us. said one of the Avenueodles hilariously. "We are just having our fourth champagne cocktail." "Ah! possible, possible, indeed!" interrupted seriously the venerable New Yorker.—

"Why, I noticed the death of your good old father in the newspapers day before yesterday. "Oh, yes," replied young New York, giving his head a ready toss and speaking flippantly; the old governor has gone the way of all the earth; but he went easy."

"Well. I knew him for forty odd years; but" said the old Knickerbocker, sadly, "I see by this morning's paper that the funeral takes place at 4 p. m. this day."

"Yes, interrupted Young America, it's so advertised, but I don't believe the thing will come off before 5 o'clock."

RE-VACCINATION. - Considering the progres sive loss of protection imparted by infant vaccination in a proportion of vaccinated persons, and the impossibility of distinguishing between those in whom it has not occurred, and also considering that a large number of persons more or less endangered by the return of capability for developing the smallpox virus, and considering further the special liability to small pox during the ten years immediately following the establishment of puberty, re-vaccina-tion is to be strongly recommended for all persons at the age of about sixteen years. Such persons so vaccinated may be regarded as permanently protected, and there is no occasion for any further repetition of the process.—
